It Is Only Natural

It is not me they are after
But I still feel dread
When I see them take my neighbors
It is only natural for me to want help

And it is only natural that when they realize what has happened

They flock to my door
Begging for protection
There is no option but to let them in

I hide them in my cellar
Bring them food and water
Give them clothes and shelter
Knowing I could get caught in the crime

But there is really no other way
To live without regret
How can I live with myself
If I let others die?

It is not me they are after
And I somehow feel relief
When I see them take my neighbors
It is only natural to keep quiet

And it is only natural that when they realize what has happened

They flock to my door

Begging for protection

There is no option but to turn them away

I hide in my home

Afraid to give sympathetic looks

Knowing that it is wrong

But not as wrong as committing a crime

But there is really no other way

To live without regret

How can I live with myself

If I put my family in danger?
